We have had snow enough to do teaming and logging on this winter, but we suppose there will be some, as usual, who will be about ready to commence when the snow gets about gone and the ground is bare in places. There seems to be no excuse for this, this year, and we hope the teams will not be obliged to pull half loads over bare ground, but be given a well earned rest till the wheeling is in proper shape to haul a full load on wheels.
The benefits to be derived from advertising are in the future as well as what you may get at the present. Advertising is something like making a snowball—the farther you go the bigger it grows. If, after you have rolled your snowball a little distance, you stop rolling it, and begin another one, you are expending an extra labor instead of accumulating, while if you had kept on rolling the old ball it would soon grow to much larger proportions than any new one you could start.
The Town Clock.
Solomon I. Millett, in the late town meeting, spoke of some things in regard to the town clock, and the following is a statement of Mr. Burnham, who had charge of the clock the past year, and will explain itself.
To THE CITIZENS OF THE TOWN OF NORWAY.—I would beg to state that since I commenced the care of the Town Clock I have never been more than 2 minutes from Standard Time. If the clock graph is to be relied on. It would be difficult for any one to keep it nearer, exposed to the extreme temperatures as a clock in that position is. We did not contract to keep it with Mr. Millett's watch or any other time piece, but have endeavored to keep it as near Standard Time as possible. In regard to water coming in on clock would say that water contract did not call for keeping the Opera House roof in repair, however, as it leaked on the clock when I took same to care for, Mr. Leavitt and myself fixed zinc in such a way as to keep the clock dry.
Respectfully, H. H. BURNHAM.
The elm tree that grew near the side of H. J. Bangs' store was cut down, Tuesday. This was done to make room for the second story to be built over the old store to the second story of the addition built in the year of the old store, last fall. The workmen did a good job in cutting it down, as it grew in a narrow driveway between the buildings and the branches overhanging both.

The tree has overlooked Norway and its inhabitants, many years, and was a giant of its kind.

The sad news reaches us of the death of Otis S. Dudley, one of our best loved and most respected townsmen. He was present at town meeting and was almost unanimously elected road commissioner. Monday night he was suddenly stricken down with that dread disease, pneumonia, which terminated fatally on the next Monday. For many years he has served the town faithfully and honestly as one of the selectmen and also as road commissioner, and it may truly be said that even his enemies, or those who opposed him (and they were few indeed) loved and respected him. It seems as if our whole town was in mourning, and a vacancy has been left that it will be hard indeed to fill. Upon his only son, Dana O. Dudley, a most worthy young man, this blow will fall with crushing force, as he is now left alone in the world without father, mother, sister or brother, but the warm sympathies of his many friends are with him in this hour of trial, and if he lives to fill the place of the father, whose days of usefulness seem thus so prematurely cut off, he will be filling a place of which though humble none need to be ashamed. The Grange, the Masons and Knights of Pythias all sustain a great loss in the death of Otis Dudley and his familiar face will be sadly missed at their meetings.

MARIA PERRONE.

By S. R. CROCKETT.

[Copyright, 1898, by the Author.]
Half a dozen bare blades were at his breast before he could move. The man lifted his hands and held them toward the gendarmes with a gesture which said clearly:

"I will go with you whither you will!"

"March!" cried a voice from the street.

"Halt!" said another—my own—out of the dusk of the porch.

With the instinct of obedience the man halted. Their officer came threateningly toward me, with anger in his eye. So soon, however, as he saw my uniform of general his sword rose and dropped again in his salute.

"Pardon, excellency. I failed to recognize you in the darkness. What shall I do with this man who has accused himself of murder?"

"Send him to my lodgings, and bring his wife, Maria Perrone, directly from the prison. I must confront them the one with the other."

The officer again saluted with infinite respect. Was he not an officer of police and I inspector of prisons and a general—scarcely less than a king to him?

I strolled to my rooms in a strangely expectant frame of mind. I was about to witness a curious sight—two self-accusers for one murder. One lied—it was my business to discover which.

The two dragons of my escort who were on duty saluted as I entered. At the top of the stair I found Stephano, my orderly, in a state of wild consternation.

There was talk of brigands in the town, he said, and I had not been seen since 4 o'clock. But I comforted him with a cheerful word and told him that before supper there were certain prisoners to be examined. He must therefore make such preparations as might seem most impressive and official. So I went to my bedroom and threw myself down on the couch to think the matter over.

Presently some one came and tapped gently at my door.

"Who is there?" I cried.

"It is I, Stephano," said the orderly.

"Ah, Stephano, come!"

Then the faithful one told me quickly that all was ready—the man waiting, the syndic himself present, and the feet of the guard who brought the woman already on the stair.

Stephano quickly buckled on my sword and threw the silken general's sash over my shoulder. Then he drew his own sword, opened the door and announced me formally.

"His most illustrious excellency the general!"

For Stephano magnified his own office, and incidentally his own.

It was a curious scene which I witnessed when I entered the great room of the old palace, which in the troubles of the great Napoleon had become the chief inn of the sadly reduced city of Atrani.

My escort, all save the sentries at the outer door, were disposed in full uniform on either side of the gloomy apartment. A long table stood in the midst with candles and papers upon it, the latter for show merely, being mostly regimental dockets of Stephano and a few drift reports of my own. The syndic had seated himself at the side of the table, but at the brusque announcement of Stephano he had risen and stood with bowed head while I walked to the red and gold chair of state reserved for me at the upper end of the room.

Then, as they were bringing forward the prisoner, Stephano came again to my side, and, unbuckling the sword of honor which the king had given me, he laid it with infinite dignity on the table in front of me.

"We are in an ill town and among an untrustworthy folk, at once turbulent and bandit ridden," he whispered as I moved my hand impatiently. "It is well to let the cattle know it when a great man deigns to come among them."

For Stephano was also of the north and despised the canaille of the south-eastern sea.

I looked up and saw Leo Perrone standing at the end of the table farthest from me. His hands were bound behind him. He looked on the floor, but his face was no longer as I had seen it, shaken with emotion. It was grave and stern rather, but very quiet.

There came the tramp of soldiers on the stone stairs, and a file of carabinieri entered with a woman. It was Maria Perrone, the dark woman with the handsome eyes whom I had seen in the morning. They brought her to the table end and set her beside her husband.

She glanced up and her eyes fell on him.

"Leo!" she cried fiercely. "Leo! A prisoner! Oh, my Leo! What have you done now?"

And she raised her arms and clasped him about the neck. The loose, coarse prison sleeves fell back from the white rounded arms, and I saw her fingers clasp and knit convulsively behind the man's head. He turned his eyes toward her, and pain and love struggled together in his eyes. The muscles of his arms twitched and drew like wire bell-pulls as he struggled to get his arms free, but the steel wrists held.

"Maria! Mother Maria! Beloved one!" he said huskily, looking at her a moment.

And then, as she clung yet closer to him, he pushed her gently away with a proud little movement, as one who would say: "Shame, shame, beloved! This is no time and no company for the showing of love!"

But in spite of these Maria Perrone wistfully kept her eyes on him, but he did not look again at his wife, but as if he cared us to think ill of it he fronted us all defiantly and yet with a certain grimly watchful respectfulness which won upon me.

Slowly the woman's hands unclunged themselves as she noted the uneasy glances of her husband's shoulders under her touch. Her white arms grew suddenly lax and fell heavily to her sides. She faced about, looking to us one by one.

inquiringly.

I paused awhile before I spoke, turning over in my mind how I should best arrive at the truth.

"You are guilty of this murder for which you were condemned?" I said to the woman.

"I am truly guilty of the man's death! I, and I alone, did it!" she answered firmly. "I know not of what my husband is accused that he stands here bound; but, as God is my judge, of all part in the killing of the soldier, Giovanni Lupo, he is innocent!"

I nodded and turned to her husband. The woman's eyes were steady as truth itself.

"You hear what your wife testifies?" I said to the man. "Do you still adhere to the open confession you made in the duomo tonight?"

"Confession in the duomo," almost shrieked the woman, turning to her husband. "You made no confession—say you made no confession!"

The man drew a long breath, swallowed hard, so that I saw the apple in his throat first rise and fall and then swell as if it would choke him. Then he began to speak in a broken voice.

"Excellency," he said, "it is true—all that I said when the music made me cry out in agony—up in the church yonder, and now I desire the punishment of man, that I may escape the vengeance of God for the shedding of blood. I wish to hide the truth no longer. I will not lie to God any more, nor let this innocent one undergo the doom which ought justly to be mine."

"You are mad—mad—mad, Leo Perrone! Hold your peace. He is beside himself, great general. Do not listen!" cried the woman, coming swiftly round the table before any one could prevent her and kneeling at his chair. Stephano, who did not approve of such familiarity, would have thrust her back, but I motioned him to his place with my hand without speaking. The woman set her hand quickly to her head, as if her wits were in danger of leaving her and she desired to recall them. With the hurried movement all her fine dark hair fell below her waist in crisp waves of shining blue black silk. The soldiers about the room gasped with astonishment, divided between duty and admiration.

"Do not believe him," she pleaded, clasping her hands. "He but desires to save me even at the cost of his own life, for you see, he loves me—yes, he loves me. I know him well. He would die to save me. My imprisonment has driven him mad. But listen, most illustrious excellency, all the truth!"

"It was Lupo, the soldier," at last the little girl spoke out, looking very modestly at me, "and he had come often to our house. My mother hated him. My father warned him not to come. But one night, when my father was among the mountains on his business, Lupo, the wolf, came and first spoke ill words and then at last he took hold of my mother to hurt her. Whereupon my mother cried: 'Leo, Leo, my man, my man! Help me!'

He was so kind.

Don't for Dog Owners.

Don't feed your dog small bones. Don't let your dog suffer with fleas. Don't kick your dog if you wish him to obey you. Don't give raw milk to puppies; always boil or scald it. Don't feed a dog candy or sweets. It often produces fits. Don't forget that flies annoy your dog as much as they do you. Don't allow your dog to roam the streets because he has a license. Don't allow stale water to go down the dog's throat while in confinement. Don't fail to have a regular time for exercising, feeding and caring for your dog. Don't fail to see that your dog has sufficient bedding to keep himself warm and that it is clean. The love of a pet, more especially a dog, can be shown better not by applying terms of endearment in the presence of visitors or by endowing him with an expensive collar or fine ribbons, but by careful attention to his health. Give him plenty of fresh air and water. Keep his skin clean and his coat well groomed. Give him plenty of exercise.

Grafting should be taught in the schools. This is the season to instruct teachers in the art; of which teachers there are none too many. A more general knowledge of grafting would do wonders for the country in improving the average character of our fruit. Many a man has been deceived by getting fruit trees of kinds he did not order, a severe disappointment. And yet, by grafting such a dilemma can soon be straightened out through inserting kinds of approved value in the locality. Again it often happens that varieties which are excellent in other localities may turn out to be a downright failure elsewhere. By grafting, things can be quickly set aright. The boys easily become interested in this art of peace, and not many lessons, based on correct principles, are required to give them proficiency to a degree that should bring success with eighty or more per cent. of all grafts set.

chair. He gave her arm a little shake, as if to say, "Tell lie or tell truth, but tell it where you stand and not elsewhere."

Then Maria Perrone fell on her knees on the polished wood of the floor.

"Believe him not," she cried yet more earnestly. "It is but his mind which has given way. He has often had such seizures. I have seen them come upon him a hundred times. Listen, great general, I swear it by my soul's salvation, upon the blessed cross, upon the relics of the saints. I, I alone, struck the blow, and I killed Giovanni Lupo."

As she spoke she lifted up a cross in which was a fragment of iron nail and made the oath which to an Atrian seals eternal destruction if the oath be false or broken.

I looked from one to the other. Leo Perrone stood with his strong, stern look fixed upon her. The woman clasped her hands before her and looked at me dry eyed. For a moment I was at my wits' end.

Stephano nudged me gently.

"The child, the little Margherita," he whispered from behind. "She followed her father when he was taken. She is below at this moment. Shall I bring her up?"

I nodded to him. Presently between the file of dragoons standing at attention there came, walking with quick, uncertain steps, a little maid, Margherita, pale of face, dark of locks all a-tangle about her brow. She looked very lovely. She dashed her hair away with her hand as Stephano placed her between her father at the table's end and her mother still kneeling on the oaken floor.

"Margherita," I said gently, "tell all you know of the killing of Giovanni Lupo. You were there, your father tells us."

The little maid looked from one to the other of us. I saw her mother make the sign of silence, and from that moment was sure.

"Look at your father," I said more sternly, "and do as he bids you."

"Tell the truth, Margherita Perrone!" said the calm voice of the self-accused at the table end.

"Must I?" she said, looking all about. "Must I indeed tell all?"

"No, no, Margherita. You saw it not. It was I! It was I!" cried Maria. "Tell them it was your mother, child, who killed the man or as I live I will curse you with the curse of a mother—the curse that God will hear, the curse that can never be taken off!"

"Speak the truth—all the truth!" said Leo Perrone, sternly and quietly.

"It was Lupo, the soldier," at last the little girl spoke out, looking very modestly at me, "and he had come often to our house. My mother hated him. My father warned him not to come. But one night, when my father was among the mountains on his business, Lupo, the wolf, came and first spoke ill words and then at last he took hold of my mother to hurt her. Fred M. Coffin of the Fifth United States cavalry has received honorable discharge, and is at present at his Gilead home. He was in Cuba about a year and a half before war was declared. As we have taken note, he participated before joining the cavalry in twenty-eight battles and skirmishes. He was not wounded but barely escaped, as once or twice the leg of his pants was cut through by a bullet, and the skin slightly burnt. He was under General Whelan at Santiago, and was the one from Troop F, when volunteers, one from each troop were called for, to respond to the call to go forth in advance of the army, and out the barbed wire fence. His term of enlistment was for two years or as long as the war should continue. He is now much improved in health, though after leaving camp, he was in the hospital, first at Montauk Point, and later at Norwich, Conn. In both perhaps he was detained the longest. When able he returned to his troop, expecting to return to Cuba; but orders transferred them to Leavenworth, Kan., and it was there the discharge came.

PERFECT WOMANHOOD.

Nature's rarest gifts of physical beauty vanish before pain. Sweet dispositions turn morbid and fretful. The possessions that win good husbands and keep their love should be guarded by women every moment of their lives.

The greatest menace to woman's permanent happiness in life is the suffering that comes from derangement of the feminine organs.

Many thousands of women have realized this too late to save their beauty, barely in time to save their lives. Many other thousands have availed of the generous invitation of Mrs. Pinkham to counsel all suffering women free of charge.

Mrs. H. J. GARRETTSON, Bound Brook, N. J., writes: "DEAR Mrs. PINKHAM—I have been taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound with the best results and can say from my heart that your medicines are wonderful. My physician called my trouble chronic inflammation of the left ovary. For years I suffered very much, but thanks to Mrs. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and kind advice, I am today a well woman. I would say to all suffering women, take Lydia E. Pinkham's medicine and your sufferings will vanish."

Mrs. MAGGIE PHILLIPS, of Ladoga, Ind., writes: "DEAR Mrs. PINKHAM—For four years I suffered from ulceration of the womb. I became so weak I could not walk across the room without help. After giving up all hopes of recovery, I was advised to use Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and wrote for special information. I began to improve from the first bottle, and am now fully restored to health."

PERFECT WOMANHOOD.

"Evil Dispositions Are Early Shown."

Just so evil in the blood comes out in shape of scrofula, pimples, etc., in children and young people. Taken in time it can be eradicated by using Hood's Sarsaparilla. In older people, the aftermath of irregular living shows itself in bilious conditions, a heavy head, a foul mouth, a general bad feeling.

It is the blood, the impure blood, friends, which is the real cause. Purify that with Hood's Sarsaparilla and happiness will reign in your family.

Blood Poison.—"I lived in a bed of fire for years owing to blood poisoning that followed small pox. It broke out all over my body, itching intensely. Tried doctors and hospitals in vain. I tried Hood's Sarsaparilla. It helped. I kept at it and was entirely cured. I could go on the house-top and shout about it." Mrs. J. T. WILLIAMS, Carbondale, Pa.

Scrofula Sores.—"My baby at two months had scrofula sores on cheek and arm. Local applications and physicians' medicine did little or no good. Hood's Sarsaparilla cured him permanently. He is now four, with smooth fair skin." Mrs. S. S. WROZEN, Farmington, Del.

Hood's Sarsaparilla NEVER Disappoints.

Hood's Pills cure liver ill; the non-irritating and only cathartic to take with Hood's Sarsaparilla.

We are glad to see R. C. Thomas and wife return from a two months trip to Florida looking so well. Mr. Thomas is very favorably impressed with the outlook there. Many, he says, have lost all, in consequence of the late freeze, who depended on their orange crop for sustenance.

Dr. O. R. Hall lectured at Nesicent Hall, last week, under the auspices of the Odd Fellows. His lecture was highly spoken of, but owing to some misapprehensions in relation to arrangements there was not so large a house as the merits of the lecture should warrant.

"Another Burden," by Mrs. Greenleaf, in a late issue of the ADVERTISER seems to reach the milk of the cocoon in every stanza and every line. "But don't they die the white man up 'brown' all around the goal. Among papers sent the writer from Manchester, N. H., The Weekly Union contains three poems on the subject. Verily, it appears to be dawning on our people that to save souls by slaughter should cease in this enlightened (?) age.

MUNYON'S VIEWS.

He Claims There is a Cure for Every Disease.

Professor Munyon says that good health is essential to the accomplishment of good work. No matter how ambitious or how pure or lofty one's ideas may be, if disease is sapping our vitality and sapping the thoughts to bodily ailments, we shall not be able to render our loved ones and society that great sympathy and assistance they have a right to expect of us. If you are ailing your first duty is to get well. I believe there is a cure for every disease. I have fifty-seven different cures for fifty-seven different ailments. Science will some day discover the others.

Munyon guarantees that his Rheumatism Cure will cure nearly all cases of rheumatism in a few hours; that his Dyspepsia Cure will cure indigestion and all stomach troubles; that his Kidney Cure will cure 90 per cent. of all cases of kidney trouble; that his Catarrh Cure will cure catarrh, no matter how long standing; that his Headache Cure will cure any kind of headache in a few minutes; that his Cold Cure will quickly break up any form of cold, and get you through the entire list of his remedies.

That Hard Cheese.

The following cheese story was told by a man we will call Mr. M., a funny man. The lady in the story we will call Mrs. R. The parties connected with this story were residents of Oxford County. Time, 40 years ago. One of the old lady R's. sayings used to be, "That it did do her soul good to give away things that were not good for anything to her."
One day Mr. M. being at the house of Mrs. R., the old lady asked him if he would like a cheese, if so she would give him one. M's. reply was that he should, he had a large family of children and was a poor man, whereupon Mrs. R. brought forth the cheese (one of her own make). Mr. M., after thanking her for it, placed it under his arm and trudged homeward, reaching home about mealtime. The family were all in waiting for him. Thinking some of the cheese would go good at that meal Mr. M. said to his wife, "If you will hand me the butter knife I will cut this cheese and we will have some to eat."
On receiving the knife and trying to cut the cheese he found it hard, so much so that he could not cut it in the usual way, and so raising his hand he struck it a sharp blow with the point of the knife. This did not scratch the cheese, but broke the knife short off at the handle.
At this Mr. M. began to get excited and calling on one of the boys to get the sharpest axe and follow him to the chopping block, he said he would cut the cheese or bust it. Laying the cheese on the block, he struck it a powerful blow with the axe, but alas, all the effect it had was to break the steel from the axe, but never left a scratch on the cheese.
This made Mr. M. so mad that he threw the cheese into the hog pen, and at the time he related this story he said it had been there 5 years, and all the hogs that he had owned since it had been there had broken their teeth off on it and you could not find a scratch on it now. And further Mr. M. said if he could only find another cheese just like this and get a hole through them and put in an axle he could haul the Devil out of his supposed abode and not scorch the cheese a mite.

How to Look Good.
Good looks are really more than skin deep, depending entirely on a healthy condition of all the vital organs. If the liver is inactive, you have a bilious look; if your stomach is disordered, you have a dyspeptic look; if your kidneys are affected, you have a pinched look. Secure good health, and you will surely have good looks. "Electric Bitters" is a good Alternative and Cathartic. It cures the stomach, liver and kidneys, purifies the blood, cures pimples, blotches and boils, and gives a good complexion. Every bottle guaranteed. Sold at Noyes Drug Store, Norway, and F. A. Shurtliff's, South Paris. 50 cents per bottle.

For Possession of a Boy.

Saturday morning in the supreme court at Portland was given a hearing on a petition for a habeas corpus brought by the Ranks of Portland to get possession of a nine years old boy, who is described in the writ as Harry G. Ranks. This boy is the son of Mr. Ranks' wife by a former husband and is living in the family of Otto M. Waite of Canton. Ten years ago the woman, who is now Mrs. Ranks, married a man named Derrick. The marriage proved unhappy and the woman left Derrick and went to Canton and lived for a while at the house of Otto M. Waite. The mother signed papers assigning her claim on the child to Mr. Waite, but the father could not be found and so the process of adoption was not carried beyond this point. Mrs. Derrick finally obtained a divorce in the court of Androscoggin county, and the probate court of that county gave to her the custody of the child. Afterward Mrs. Derrick married Mr. Ranks of Portland, who now endeavors to get possession of the boy. Mr. Waite refuses to surrender the boy unless ordered to do so by the court on the ground that the mother having assigned to him her claim to the boy and consented to his being adopted, and having afterward been granted the custody of the child by the courts the adoption is legal.
After a long hearing the court ordered Otto M. Waite of Canton to surrender the custody of Harry G. Ranks to the boy's step-father.

One of our foreign-born inhabitants recently had occasion to visit the Municipal Court. His knowledge of English language intricacies is limited, and his struggles resulted in addressing the letter to "Mr John Sun the Jug".

The Post Oliver Wendell Holmes' Writicism.

The great poet, Oliver Wendell Holmes, once said: "If all drugs were thrown into the sea, it would be better for mankind, and all the worse for the fishes." Of course the genial poet feared only to poison his drugs as used by most physicians. He certainly could not have meant all medicines, for Nature, in her woods and fields, has been most prolific in yielding up her treasures of harmless, vegetable remedies for every disease. The wonderful discovery of the famous Dr. Greene, of 84 Temple Place, Boston, Mass., amply proves the fact. Indeed, this skilled specialist in the treatment of nervous, chronic and lingering complaints, as well as every disease of the stomach, liver and kidneys, drugs, but confines his treatment solely to the use of harmless, vegetable remedies. His world-wide known medicine, Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy, is only one of his many remedies. His extraordinary success in curing diseases of whatever name or nature, the innumerable restorations to health under the use of these marvelous curative medicines as prescribed by Dr. Greene, or of the "Colonel's" doubt that Nature has provided remedies for each and every phase of disease, and that Dr. Greene, by his deep investigations, and his enormously large experience, has discovered and prepared remedies which surely and certainly cure these complicated cases of chronic disease. Any sufferer can demonstrate this fact, as Dr. Greene gives all the privilege of consulting him, personally or by letter, absolutely free of charge. If you are out of health and have failed to be cured, send Dr. Greene at once, or write to him freely and fully about your case. You can do so in perfect and absolute confidence. He will explain your complaint and advise you what to do to be cured.

The report shows they have expended the past year besides their running expenses, $591.93 for building and repairs, and $399.72 for repairs on the track, in all $1,711.05. This has all been paid except a loan of about $50.

Children's Corner.

South Harrison, Me., March 6, 1899.
DEAR EDITOR:—I am a little boy and I shall be ten years old my next birthday, and that is the nineteenth of next month. I am boarding with my cousins in the country and I like up here very much. My home is in Biddeford, Me., and I live with my grandpa, and grandma when I am there. For pets I have three kitties; their names are Snowball, Kippie and Grady. I go to school when there is one, but it does not keep now. I study reading, spelling, geography, arithmetic, history and grammar. I have an uncle in Cuba. I will close with a riddle. Black and white, read all over. From your little friend,
BARBLE O. KINNEY.

In the death of Mrs. Elizabeth (Sampson) wife of Capt. Lewis Bisbee, East Sumner has lost a most worthy and greatly esteemed resident. She had been a faithful and devoted wife of Capt. Bisbee, having shared his joys and sorrows for over 70 years. This worthy couple were married on Dec. 31, 1829, and their golden wedding was celebrated over twenty years ago. At the town's Centennial on June 15, 1898, Mrs. Bisbee was in quite good health and with her companion occupied seats upon the platform. She will long be remembered as a lively, cheerful and kind neighbor and friend. She was 91 years of age last September. The captain survives her. He has been very feeble, the past winter. The funeral occurred at the residence on Sunday.

Physicians Endorse Dr. True's Elixir.

"Our medical staff has made free use of your Pin Worm Elixir, and they find the return so satisfactory that they have asked us to 'always keep it in stock.' We have gladly done this and obtained our supply from the local wholesale druggists from whom we procure our regular stock of drugs." The above extract from a letter to Dr. J. F. True, of Auburn, Me., from Albert C. Smith, president of The Suffolk Dispensary, Boston, gives evidence of the regard which the medical profession has for Dr. True's famous vegetable remedy. It has been used with constant success for 47 years in thousands of households for the cure of worms of all kinds, for diseases of the stomach, liver and intestines, and for all the common complaints of children.

IMPRESSED.

The young woman who recites poetry had just been breathing a few soulful stanzas into the ear of Colonel Stillwell. The colonel's ear was not used to it, and he betrayed symptoms of uneasiness.

"You see," he exclaimed apologetically, "I can't really appreciate poetry. I get so busy keeping time to the lines with my feet that I forget to look out for the sense. And when my curiosity gets aroused concerning the sense I forget to keep time. So I may as well confess that it's rather wasted. It might just as well have been done in prose."

"But you surely cannot fail to appreciate the significance of such lines as 'The night shall be filled with music, and the sound of voices which no ear can hear.' Shall I fold up your tents like the Arabs and silently steal away?"

The colonel looked thoughtful. Then he exclaimed: "No; those lines are all right. They show great knowledge of human nature. I have traveled in the east, and I know all about Arabs. And his character is suggested in that stanza with great delicacy and, at the same time, with accuracy. An Arab will steal anything. You may argue and entreat, and he may apologize and promise, but it won't make any difference. He will go right ahead in his old custom and keep stealing away."—Washington Star.

A Job's Comforter.

"My new book," said the discouraged author, "has not been popular enough to afford us a dinner."
"That's because you're a genius," said his wife, "and won't be appreciated until after you're dead and gone. Now, if you only lived in a garret, ten flights up, where there was no elevator, on a crust of bread a day, how perfectly poetical it would be!"

She didn't hear what he said as he rushed out. She couldn't, for he had kicked the dog down the stairs, and the dog was howling.—Atlanta Constitution.

Quite a Hot One.

The boy was trying to specify when a certain thing happened.
"The night that you didn't come home," he began, adding his remarks to the dean.
"That is very indefinite," broke in the woman.
The man had nothing to say. He knew that the best thing he could do was to pretend to take it as his wife's little joke.—Chicago Post.

Too Lucid.

He—Do you like my little poem?
She—Yes; the sentiment is beautiful, and the handling of your theme is delicate itself, but I fear it is not up to our modern ideal. No one would attribute it to Browning. Couldn't you make it just a trifle more ambiguous and puzzling? I can clearly understand every word and sentence as it is.—Detroit Free Press.

Delicate Distinctions.

"Do you think," said Mr. Orestes Vary Ham, "this manager will pay me the money I earn?"
"I guess so," said Mr. Stormington Barnes, with the quiet superiority of a veteran. "But I doubt whether he will ever pay you half of what he promised you."—Washington Star.

Ignorance Blies; Knowledge Blister.

Mr. Applebare—Where ignorance is bliss, you know, "this folly to be wise."
Miss Wiggins—Yes, I know. Still it may interest you to know that your hat is all jammed in at the top.—Chicago News.

1,000,000 GIVEN AWAY.

By a special and particular arrangement with the manufacturers of Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy, free trial bottles of this great medicine for the kidneys, liver, bladder and blood, Rheumatism, Dyspepsia and Constipation, will be sent absolutely free, post-paid, to all persons suffering from any of the diseases mentioned above who will send their full name and post office address to the DR. DAVID KENNEDY CORPORATION, Rondout, N. Y., provided they mention the OXFORD COUNTY ADVERTISER, when they write.

A very simple test to determine whether your kidneys or bladder are diseased is to put some of your urine in a glass tumbler and let it stand 24 hours, if it has a sediment or a cloudy,ropy or stringy appearance, it is pale or discolored, you do not need a physician to tell you that you are in a dangerous condition. Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy speedily cures such serious symptoms as a pain in the back, inability to hold urine, a burning scalding pain in passing it. Frequent desire to urinate especially at night, the staining of linen by your urine and all unpleasantness and dangerous effects produced on the system by the use of whiskey and beer.

A careful investigation it was found that over 91 per cent. of the people who sent for a sample bottle were so much benefited by its use that they purchased a large sized bottle of their drug, which in most cases cured them while in some rare instances it took as many as two or even three bottles to effect a permanent cure.

Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy is sold by all druggists at $1.00 per large bottle, or six bottles for $5.00. 9-13 has often been styled the cause of death in persons who have long lingered in disease. The amazing work which the heart regularly performs would certainly pre-suppose its breaking down. The most active climber can raise himself 1000 feet in an hour, the best locomotive 4000 feet and the heart 20,000 feet. To preserve its energies in full glow and force, Pabst Malt Extract, The "Best" Tonic, will act as an effective and practical fuel. No steam without fire. No energy without food. No staying-power without rich supplies of blood. The heart is the great engine of the body. Keep it going, steadily, easily, persistently, unto a ripe old age.

I have used your Malt Extract where a "Best" Tonic seemed to be indicated, and the results have proved quite satisfactory. Where a malt preparation is requisite it does not hesitate to suggest the use of your preparation.
